GRAPE GROWING WINE MAKING

Premier Hepburn Planning Complete Survey — Price Reduction of Wine Post- poned in Meantime.

A thorough investigation of the grape growing and wine making industry is being planned by Premier Hepburn, according to information given the president of the Grape Growers' Association, Mr. J. J. Smith, through P. H. Avery, Lincoln's representative in the Legislature.

Mr. Avery has written Mr. Smith, advising that Premier Hepburn had definitely stated that the proposed reduction in retail price of wine had been postponed for at least two or three months.

This will enable the premier to make proposed survey of the situation with the assistance of the views of experts, by which time it will also be known if the Federal Government makes any reduction in wine or spirit tax when the budget is brought down. Mr. Avery intimates that further action will be based entirely and independently on the actual needs of the grape growers, the wineries and consumers.

The Premier was recently asked by the Grape Growers' Assn. to investigate what it termed the "unwarranted interference of certain wineries into the affairs of the grape growers". Alleging "apparent intimidation of growers by certain wineries."

F. H. Avery To Support Premier's Separate School Bill

Leaving their seats at Queen's Park long enough to address a meeting of the Ward 2 Liberal Association Monday night, two members of the Legislature vowed they would back Hon. Mitchell F. Hepburn's separate school bill even if it meant that they must sacrifice their chances of being returned during the next election.

"It has been said by many," declared Mr. Avery, "that the men who stand behind this bill will commit political suicide. I can only say to you, as a Protestant, that I would rather commit political suicide two years hence than see fair play and justice sacrificed for religious prejudice."

Mr. Avery rapped methods used by some of the large department stores in their treatment of employees.

"I should like to see inspectors appointed by the Government to see that these firms are living up to the standards of civilized industry."

Ian Strachan voiced precisely the same attitude toward the separate school bill as did Mr. Avery—that he would back it at the risk of political defeat when he faced the electors.

The Grimsby Young Men's Chorus was heard to splendid advantage over CKTB, St. Catharines, on Wednesday evening. This talented group of singers delighted a large radio audience by their renderings under the capable leadership of Mr. G. L. Eaton.

TWO YEAR OLD CHILD LOSES LIFE IN MOTOR ACCIDENT NEAR GRIMSBY ON WEDNESDAY

Anne Quinn, Daughter of St. Catharines Resident, Instantly Killed When Car Is Sideswiped By Truck — Jos. Hearn, R. R. No. 1, Fonhtill, Driver of Car, Suffers Broken Ribs And Two Other Members of Family Injured.

Death claimed a small child on Wednesday afternoon in a tragic accident on No. 8 Highway, about a mile and a half west of the town, when Ann Quinn, R. R. No. 4, St. Catharines, aged about two years, was thrown to the highway and apparently instantly killed in a terrific motor collision, between a truck and a car. The baby, whose mother is reported to be ill in the hospital, was being taken care of by the Hearn family, of R. R. No. 1, Fonhtill, in whose car she was riding when the sad mishap occurred.

John Hearn was a passenger in the front seat with his father Joseph Hearn, the driver of the car, while Mrs. Joseph Hearn was in the rear seat with the baby who was asleep at the time. It is reported that a truck, travelling westward turned out and passed the Hearn car, going in the same direction and then allegedly put on the brakes. In order to avoid crashing into the rear of the truck, Mr. Hearn apparently swerved to the left and in doing so was sideswiped by an oncoming truck belonging to the American Cyanamid Company of Niagara Falls. The left side of the car was completely torn out.

The child was removed to the Stonehouse Funeral Home while the three members of the Hearn family were taken to the Moyer Nursing home where they are being treated for severe shock and lacerations to face and head. Mr. Joseph Hearn suffered several broken ribs. Dr. MacMillan attended the injured, Coroner Dr. Gordon A. Sinclair being in attendance.

An inquest will be held at Grimsby on April 29th.

DAYLIGHT SAVING IN HAMILTON, MAY 2nd

The question of Daylight Saving being introduced on Saturday, May 2, or Sunday, May 3, precipitated a hot debate in Hamilton council. Eventually it was decided to drop the idea of a change on Sunday and to follow the same procedure as in the past. Accordingly, Hamilton's clocks will be turned ahead one hour on the night of Saturday, May 2.

The anthems will be "Christ The Lord Is Risen To-day," by Mumma, "Hail the Day," by Carrie B. Adams; and a quartette, "O Glorious Hour".

The evening anthem will be "The Resurrection and the Life."

Mr. Clifford Hill, B.A., of McMaster University, will be the speaker for the day.

STONEY CREEK PASTOR GOES TO FORT ERIE

Rev. Henry Cotton, who for the last five years has been minister of the United Church Stoney Creek, received official confirmation of having been chosen minister of Central Avenue United Church, Fort Erie, by a unanimous vote of that congregation on Sunday morning. His new duties will commence on July 1. A temporary committee for pastoral relationships was appointed after the service pending the permanent committee being named on Wednesday, April 8.

TOWN FINANCIAL REPORT IN THIS WEEK'S ISSUE

The financial report of the Town of Grimsby for the year 1935 with details as to balance sheet and receipts and expenditures of the various civic bodies will be found on page two and three of this week's issue of The Independent.

RESTRICTED RESIDENTIAL AREAS IN GRIMSBY ARE PROPOSED

Council To Enquire Into Question — Continued Co-operation of Employers of Labor in Employing Local Labor Requested in Order to Assist Relief Problem — Board of Education Estimates of $19,900 Approved — Want Garbage Wrapped — Daylight Saving Effective May 3rd.

The Grimsby town council held its regular April meeting on Wednesday evening when a considerable budget of business was disposed of. Mayor Lewis was in the chair and all members of council were in attendance.

May Buy Land
Councillor Chivers favored the purchase of a small piece of land adjoining the town disposal plant, the owner of which has appeared before the council from time to time with reference to water overflowing his property. The land could be utilized in connection with plant. The council will visit property and consider an offer from the owner to buy the land.

Favor Paying 30c Hour On Project
Councillor Chivers called attention to the fact that the west end sewer project would be proceeded with in about two weeks and suggested that those employed on undertaking be paid 30 cents per hour. Councillor Lothian also thought those employed should receive reasonable pay. The council was favorable to paying this wage per hour of project, the sewer having been petitioned for recently and approved.

Want Residential Area
A petition signed by residents of Kidd and Livingston Ave., was presented asking council to put into effect certain restriction as to the type of dwelling to be built in residential areas and specifying that a certain amount be expended on any dwelling erected so as not to reduce value of other residential property in the section. The petition was the result of a request for a building permit, value of dwelling to be $1,500.

Several ratepayers spoke to the petition, voicing the view that dwellings erected in the section referred to should cost not less than $3,000 to $3,500 so as to protect value of other properties in the neighborhood.

It was decided by council to enquire into present bylaw as to restrictions in effect.

Messrs. Chivers, Almas and Wilkins were named a committee to enquire into the advisability of passing bylaws setting aside residential areas in the town, to name the value and kinds of buildings that may be erected in restricted residential areas and to submit present building bylaw to Messrs. Seymour and Lampard, solicitors and to report their findings to this council.

Slot Machines Not Legal

The clerk who was instructed to enquire into the matter at the last meeting of council advised that he had been informed by town solicitors that slot machines were not legal and that steps to clear them out were being taken by the Attorney-General's Dept.

Wide Interest In Crop Meetings

Meetings of the special series on crop and soil improvement for Lincoln County were held last week at Smithville, Abingdon, Campden and S. S. 13, North Grimsby. They were well attended and wide interest was shown. It is planned to select at least one five acre plot in each township adjoining a highway and treated plots will be placed to indicate the treatment given. The programme is one of interest to all grain and stock men of the Niagara Peninsula and similar meetings were held in Welland County this week.

Coming Event

AN EASTER TEA, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of the Baptist Church, will be held in the Sunday School Hall on Thursday, April 16, at 3 p.m. There will be a good programme, also a table of Homemade Baking. Come and bring your friends. Admission 25c.

Smithville Hockey Team Has Fine Record

Hundreds of Smithville and surrounding district hockey fans went in to Port Colborne Friday night to witness the most thrilling hockey game of the season, when Smithville Imperials, O.R.H.A. champions, won from Port Colborne Sailors in a third-period overtime game, by a score of 5-4. This was a replay of the previous week's tie game. However, Friday night three or four of the intermediate players were playing in a Frontier league game at Niagara Falls, so the Smithville boys found themselves facing the senior O.H.A. line of Forgie, Morrison and Upper.

The game was very fast, and except in the first period, when seven penalties were handed out, cleanly played.

The Smithville team of which the community is justifiably proud, has played 29 games during the season, winning 28 and tying one.

AWAY BACK WHEN

By FRANK FAIRBORN, JR.

In January of 1886—50 years ago, Beamsville village had a shooting affray, which caused tremendous excitement and provided the whole district with a topic of conversation for many weeks. The late William Murray, Provincial Detective, writes in his book, "Memories", of the case as follows:

John Stone was a cynic, an atheist, and an English gentleman. He came of an ancient and honorable family. His father educated him for the Church of England and his mother's heart's desire was to see him a clergyman. He graduated from Harrow (preparatory school only) and was famed among his classmates for his brilliancy. Instead of training for the pulpit he developed a yearning for the stage and he turned his back on the ministerial career planned by his parents and devoted himself to the study of Shakespeare and the portrayal of Shakespearean roles. He married a Miss Morley, a relative of the Right Hon. John Morley, and after loitering for a year or two he suddenly packed his trunks and sailed with his wife, for America.

"He settled in Texas," says Murray, "and bought a large ranch not far from Dallas. Subsequently he moved into Dallas, was elected Mayor and was re-elected. He was such a remarkable man, with such a command of language, that it is not strange he should become involved as the central figure in an affair which drew the attention of the President of the United States, the British Ambassador, the Attorney-General of the United States and high officials of both Canada and the neighboring country."

"Stone had a sister, a Mrs. Ann Hodge, who came from England to Canada and lived in Beamsville, county of Lincoln, twenty miles from Suspension Bridge. Her husband was a fruit grower. Mayor Stone of Dallas made occasional visits to New York and on one of these trips he called to see his sister. One of her children, Maude Hodge, was a beautiful girl of sixteen at this time. John Stone, when he saw her liked her so much that he took her back to Texas and kept her in his own family, educating her with his own children. Several years later Mrs. Hodge went to Texas to visit her brother and daughter. She did not like the look of things. Maude had grown to a lovely woman of nineteen, and John Stone regarded her with jealous affection. Mrs. Hodge took her daughter away from Stone and brought her home to Beamsville, very much against Stone's wishes.

"John Stone tarried in Texas for a short time, and then he, too, came to Beamsville, where Maude was living. He started a cheese factory and moved his family from Dallas to Beamsville. Maude Hodge became his clerk in the factory. At that time Stone was a man about forty-five years old, of remarkable personality and amazing command of language. He was a man of refined appearance, with sandy-brown hair and grey eyes and rather classic features. One of his chief pleasures was to inveigh against churches and clergymen, and to mock at the calling for which he had been educated. He proclaimed himself an atheist, a believer in no church and in no creed. He denounced Christians as pretenders and the Christian life as a delusion and a sham. Consequently, when Maude, his favorite, became acquainted with Miss Chapman, a very fine lady and sister of the Rev. I. M. Chapman, pastor of the Baptist church of Beamsville, John Stone was displeased greatly. As Miss Chapman's influence over Maude grew, the young girl began to weary of her uncle's employ and went to the factory reluctantly. At length, in January, 1886, she stayed away from the factory, remaining at her own home with her mother. John Stone waited in vain for her return. On January 5th he went to her house. Maude and her mother were sitting in the kitchen, chatting, about two o'clock in the afternoon, when Stone walked in.

"Is Ann in?" he asked Mrs. Hodge. "Ann was out. Mrs. Hodge said he would return presently. John Stone stepped over to Maude, opened his coat, drew something from an inside pocket and held it out to Maude.

"The girl saw him draw forth the revolver and offer it to her. She shrunk back.

"Maude, shoot me," said John Stone, holding out the revolver to her.

"Mrs. Hodge screamed and begged her brother not to shoot. Stone, without a word, fired three shots at his favorite. Mrs. Hodge ran out of the house shrieking. As she ran she heard a fourth shot, John Stone had walked to the door, put the pistol to his head and shot himself. Mrs. Hodge and several neighbors hurried to the house. Maude staggered out of the door and fell in the yard. She was carried to the house of a neighbor, Mrs. Konkle and Mrs. Jessop and McLean attended her, locating one bullet in the left side below the heart and another near the left shoulder blade. Stone was taken to his own home. The doctors thought both would die. Two constables were set to guard Stone at his own house, night and day. He hovered on the verge of death for five weeks, and suddenly, to everybody's surprise, he began to recover. Towards the middle of February the doctors said he soon could be removed to St. Catharines gaol.

"I talked with him at the time and he impressed me as one of the most fluent talkers I ever had heard. Words flowed in a ceaseless, unbroken stream. His vocabulary was remarkable.

"It was a high ambition; these things cannot always be accounted for," he said referring to the shooting.

"In February a stranger, giving the name of Mr. Matthews, arrived in Beamsville. No one knew who he was or whence he came. He disappeared as suddenly as he had appeared. John Stone also disappeared. This was on February 14th. One of the constables guarding him possibly was not so much surprised as some others over his escape. I went to Beamsville and traced Stone, where he had driven in a carriage to Suspension Bridge and had crossed to the States

Walter McRae Reviews The Life and Works of Pauline Johnson

In an illuminating and most interesting address given at the meeting of the Young People's Society of Trinity United Church, held in Trinity Hall on Monday evening, Mr. Walter McRae, lecturer and author, reviewed the life and works of Pauline Johnson, The Canadian Poetess, with whom he travelled for nine years and with whom he was associated in giving "Evenings of Poetry." During that period they appeared in scores of communities throughout Canada and United States and also visited England. Mr. McRae, in his book, "Twin Hall Tonight," tells many interesting incidents of their visits to various localities.

Born in 1861 on the Indian Reserve near Brantford, Pauline Johnson gave early indication of her talent for writing and reading and when she appeared on the public platform her works met with popular favor. She continued to delight audiences throughout Canada until illness obliged her to retire, her death occurring in British Columbia about a score of years ago.

Mr. McRae recited a number of her poems including "The Song My Paddle Sing," which is considered a classic in literature, showing the superior quality of her writings. She also wrote extensively for various periodicals and was among the outstanding writers of what was known as the "Golden Age of Canadian Literature," when a group of Canadian writers of whom she was one, brought into prominence the name of Canada through the high merit of their literary productions.

One of her works which had a particularly wide appeal was "Legends of Vancouver," of which over 130,000 copies were sold.

Mr. McRae in providing "An Evening With Pauline Johnson," delighted the large number present, the meeting furnishing one of the most interesting held this year under the auspices of the Literary department of the Society. Mr. O. D. Davidson, the convener, presided, while enjoyable musical numbers were furnished by Mr. Jack Ansell and Mr. Irvine Theat.

HEPBURN STAYS AS LEADER

To Lead Liberals In Next Election — Says No Alternative.

Faced with rebellious protests from his own followers, who were telling him frankly that his retirement spelt disintegration for the party, Premier Hepburn last week consented to stay as Liberal Leader and Premier for Ontario.

The Premier gave the first inkling of his decision to the Liberal caucus which met at the Parliament Buildings in the afternoon. In the evening he confirmed it with the statement that, as much as he wished to retire because of his health, "there was no alternative but to stay."

"As much as I want to retire," said the Premier, "and as much as I would retire, knowing my own physical condition, there was no alternative but to stay."

The decision "to stick" was made some time within the previous twenty-four hours. The Premier is understood to have been informed then and earlier that some of his own Ministers would resign their portfolios if he retired. The reason for the revolt was the political fact—admitted by Hepburn friends and Hepburn enemies—that if the Premier stepped out the party could not carry the next election.

It was reported in some circles that doctors had warned him to retire just twenty-four hours previous to his announcement.

There would be no election in 1936. (Continued on page 8.)

Prices At Sales Are Much Higher

Prices at recent auction sales, it is reported, are much higher than a year ago. The fact of new farm machinery having increased in price recently is believed to be a factor. Bidding is more brisk now, it is stated, and cash seems to be more plentiful. The prices being paid for good work horses is said to be the highest in several years.

WM. LOTHIAN TO HEAD CLUB

Elected President of St. Andrew's Men's Service Club — Will Hold Amateur Night.

The officers for 1936 and 1937 season of St. Andrew's Anglican Service Club will be Hon. President, Henry Hillier, President, Ald. William Lothian; Vice President, Victor Thompson; Secretary Treasurer, N. McBrien. G. G. Bourne, Jack Apin, Arthur Almas, Hugh Whyte, Executive. The Treasurer's report was most encouraging, showing a substantial balance. The club membership also showed a slight increase.

The most important business before the executive was the Ladies' Night which will be the first Amateur Night to be held in Grimsby. All applications must be in on Tuesday night, April 14 and all applicants must give an approximate time for their number and the age from 15 years or over.

The applicants will not be in competition but will be judged by three competent citizens. This is the regular monthly meeting and is only open to members and their guests for this night.

There is a possibility that if this first amateur night proves a success there will be a date selected for the public to attend when prizes will be awarded to those appearing on this program.

It will be just as well to get applications in early as the number will have to be limited.

Orchards Injured By Tiny Mice And Much Damage Feared

Mice have caused a certain amount of damage to young fruit trees in Wentworth county during the winter months. The heavy snowfall during the last season provided the mice with plenty of protection, but cut into their usual means of getting food.

T. J. Mahony, farmers' official receiver and well-known Saltfleet farmer, said that he would not be surprised if the damage to trees by the rodents was quite heavy.

"One apple orchard in Ancaster I know of was hard hit by mice," he remarked, "and that shows that they must have had a hard time getting enough food. Even the heavy bark on the old trees was attacked."

Pruning operations in the peninsula vineyards are practically completed. Mr. Mahony stated, and fruit tree pruning will be done in the near future. "Gardeners will be starting to tie up the vines pretty soon," he said. "They've made better headway than usual this season. Some of them will also be spraying in a few weeks using dormant spray to kill off scale and other bark diseases before the buds open."

Retiring Officers Are Honored By St Andrew's Women's Auxiliary

Last Friday afternoon, April 4th, members and friends of St. Andrew's Women's Auxiliary gathered at the Parish Hall to hear Mrs. F. J. Brimer, of Victoria, B.C., an officer of the Dominion Board of the Women's Auxiliary of the Church of England in Canada. Mrs. Brimer gave her listeners first hand information of conditions among the people of the Western Provinces and North-West Territories over which she travels each year in her official capacity.

At the close of Mrs. Brimer's talk an interesting ceremony took place when Mrs. H. E. Yennery, and Mrs. G. B. McConachie, retiring Secretary and Treasurer respectively, were each presented with a crystal bowl filled with tulips, as a slight mark of appreciation from their fellow-workers on their retirement; Mrs. Yennery having completed ten years' service and Mrs. McConachie six.

Arrangements were made at this meeting for a Home Baking and Apron Sale to be held at the office of Grimsby Natural Gas Co. on Saturday, April 18th.

Coming Event

TRINITY UNITED WOMAN'S ASSOCIATION will hold a sale of Homemade Baking on Saturday, April 25, in Theat's Store, beginning at 10 a.m.

Financial Report of the Town of Grimsby For the Year 1935

Goodyear Co. Shows Sales Increase

Quarter's Showing Higher Than Last Year's, Says Partridge.

In a letter to shareholders of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Canada Limited, accompanying dividend cheques for the first quarter of 1935, the president, A. G. Partridge states: "While figures will not be available for a few days, it is estimated that the first quarter of the current year will show an increase in dollar volume of profit over the corresponding period of a year ago. Tire production has been moderately increased to meet prospective increases in replacement sales and in sales to car manufacturers for equipment purposes. Your company is adequately prepared to maintain its full share of the business and we again request your criticisms, suggestions and assistance towards furthering the sale of Goodyear products."

The letter is the first to be issued to shareholders by Mr. Partridge since his election to the presidency of the company in succession to C. H. Carlisle, now chairman of the executive and finance committee of the board. The practice of writing to shareholders periodically giving them briefly the latest information available regarding business conditions and their company's position, a practice followed for many years by Mr. Carlisle, will be continued by the new president, says Mr. Partridge.

Three Plays Presented At Stoney Creek In Dramatic Competition

The dramatic competition held in the parish hall, Stoney Creek, on Wednesday last between groups from the Vinemount Institute, Junior Institute and Stoney Creek Institute, was a highly successful event.

Three one-act plays were presented, the titles being, A String of Pearls, by Vinemount Institute; The Wise Woman, by the Jr. Institute, and Mary's Dismissal, by Stoney Creek Institute, of which were enjoyed. The outstanding actresses in the plays were: Mrs. C. A. Lee, in The Wise Woman, as Mrs. Martin Waspottle; Mrs. W. N. Langdon, in Mary's Dismissal, as Mary, an old servant, and A String of Pearls, Miss Anne Glidden, as Peggy Madison.

The premier award went to the Saltfleet Junior Institute, second to the Stoney Creek Institute, and third to Vinemount. The Hamilton orchestra supplied the music during intermissions. Praise was given Miss Marjorie Lee, Mrs. M. K. Morris and Mrs. Geo. Glidden, as directors of the plays.

The adjudicators, Miss C. H. Crerar and Prof. C. H. Stearns, of Hamilton, together with Miss Pearl Krick, Mrs. D. Farmer and Mrs. George Glidden were tendered a vote of thanks at the close. Reeve Carscadden, of Saltfleet, acted as chairman.

Drive Against Slot Machines In St. Kitts Two Fines Imposed

A drive against slot machines in the city of St. Catharines, was continued Wednesday when V. Cervone was fined $150, and Miss Meta Calder, $100, on convictions of maintaining common gaming-houses. Defended by J. J. Bench, both accused entered pleas of guilty, thus not forcing the Crown to call eleven boys, ranging in age from 12 to 17, as witnesses.

Mr. Bench was granted his plea for leniency in fines and against confiscation of the machines. Crown Attorney E. H. Lancaster, however, told the court it was the intention of his department to drive every slot machine out of the city. No further consent of his could be secured against seizing and breaking up machines, he said.

TOTAL OF $9,000 RAISED BY ST. CATHARINES Y.M.C.A. - Y.W.C.A.

A total of $9,176 was reached at noon Friday at the final report meeting of the Y.M.C.A. - Y.W.C.A. maintenance campaign workers. It is anticipated that this amount will be further augmented by at least $600 from subscriptions yet to be received.

At the meeting a telegram pledging a subscription of $1,000, was read from David B. Mills.

PER, G. E. BOLTON.OPEN SEASON FOR MUSKRATS
1935, SOUTHERN ONTARIO

Announcement is made to the effect that the present open season for the trapping of muskrats in Southern Ontario has been extended, as follows:

(a) In the Counties of Essex and Kent, up to and including April 7th;
(b) In the Counties of Brant, Elgin, Haldimand, Lambton, Lincoln, Middlesex, Norfolk, Oxford, Welland, and Wentworth, up to and including April 20th.

(c) In the Counties of Addington, Bruce, Carleton, Dufferin, Dundas, Durham, Frontenac, Glengarry, Grenville, Grey, Halton, Hastings, Huron, Lanark, Leeds, Lennox, Northumberland, Ontario, Peel, Perth, Peterborough, Prescott, Prince Edward, Russell, Simcoe, Stormont, Victoria, Waterloo, Wellington and York, up to and including April 25th.

(d) In the Districts of Haliburton, Muskoka, Nipissing (South of the Mattawa River) and Parry Sound, and the County of Renfrew, up to and including April 30th.

In accordance with conditions under which Resident Trappers' Licenses are issued, trappers are allowed a period of ten days after the respective closing dates in which to dispose of the pelts of muskrats taken during the open season.

STORES DEMOLISHED

Demolition of the Canadian Department Stores, St. Catharines, gutted by fire a week ago, with only the groceries section standing, has been completed. The latter was not badly damaged by fire, although heat and water ruined the stock.

MUST RAISE $86,000

A compromise by which the Ontario municipal board has given the city of Hamilton permission to fund four-fifths of 1936 direct relief costs marked the partial elimination of a threatened crisis in civic financing this year. Nevertheless the city is confronted with the problem of providing for the one-fifth of its $432,000 relief budget, roughly $86,000, out of current revenues in the face of the fact that no provision for it has been made in estimates approved last month.

ON GROWERS' COMMITTEE

The Niagara district will be well represented on a fruit and vegetable growers' committee appointed to confer with wholesalers and railway men on the proposed new Toronto terminal market. Men from this district on the committee are C. Howard Fisher, Queenston; Joseph J. Smith, Winona; and George McCalla, St. Catharines. Paul A. Fisher, Burlington, is the general chairman. The committee will give thorough study and investigation and will push plans for consummation.

ANNUAL CONVENTION

OFFICERS ELECTED

The annual convention of the Saltfleet and Barton Sunday School association was held in the United church, Stoney Creek. The officers elected for the coming year are: Geo. Holt, president; William Welch, vice-president; Miss Dorothy Bowslaugh, secretary-treasurer. The heads of committees are: Children's work, Miss Evelyn Budge; girls' work, Miss Hazel Wolfe; young people's work, Rev. Fred Bailey; home department, Mrs. W. N. Langdon; temperance, William Tweedie; teachers' training course, Rev. A. R. Johnston; missionary, Mrs. C. E. Freeman. Rev. Lorne Graham, of New Toronto, gave addresses afternoon and evening. Rev. Dr. W. H. Graham and Rev. Fred Bailey also spoke. Miss Evelyn Budge gave a paper on children's work. Several numbers were given by the Stoney Creek male quartette. The next convention will be held at Tapscott.

WELL KNOWN IN DISTRICT

Following a long career of Christian service, Rev. Dr. I. Tovell, minister emeritus of Trinity United church, Toronto, and well known in this district, died at the Wellesley hospital in Toronto, due to a fractured hip, which he sustained in the middle of last February. Unfortunately his advanced years prevented his recovery.

NOT AFFECTED BY FIRE

Almost a week after the fire that destroyed the Canadian Department Stores at St. Catharines, the vault, which had been buried in the debris, was opened. Money and records were found intact, although some water had crept in.

CAR WRECKED

Mrs. Daisy Hill, of St. Catharines, suffered a cut on the face Saturday in a collision between her car and one operated by Henry Miles, R.R. No. 1, Beamsville. The latter car was turned over on its side and reported as a total wreck, with damage involved estimated at $40.

HOMES FLOODED IN THOROLD DISTRICT

Residents of the Welland, Thorold and Wellandport districts suffered heavy damage through flooding of homes. The Welland river is slowly dropping back within its banks. The most serious flood seemed to be at Wellandport, where all roads, with the exception of one, were flooded. An old resident said he had never seen the river so high before, it being at least ten feet above normal. The Welland river at that point is normally a hundred yards or so across, but at present it is nearly half a mile from side to side.

"Adversity has the effect of eliciting talents which in prosperous circumstances would have lain dormant."

REPAIR GRAFTING FOR GIRDLED TREES

Owing to the severity and extent of the injury to fruit trees, particularly apples, caused by rabbits and mice during the past winter. The Horticultural Experiment Station, Vineland, has considered it advisable to issue instructions for repairing the damage.
It is stated that by following the directions given satisfactory repair may be accomplished with apple and pear trees, but results with the stone fruits (peaches, plums and cherries), are unlikely to be very successful, though nevertheless worth trying in cases of valuable trees.

SAYS CHICKS BETTER THAN WE ADVERTISED

SOME people feel that Bray Chicks can't possibly be as good as we claim they are. Well, ask the man who owns one.
Ask D. R. Duchemin, of Ridgeview Poultry Farm, Myrtle, Ont.
Last year Mr. Duchemin got two lots of chicks—one lot of BRAY
Chicks, one from another source.
After raising the two lots and comparing them, he says the Bray lot were

"Better birds than you advertised".

We DO make strong claims for Bray Chicks. But we can back every claim we make. And here's a customer who says that we could make even stronger claims and still be on the safe side.

This year, naturally, Mr. Du-chemin came back for more Bray Chicks. On Feb. 4 he got 405.
Five weeks later, he still had 399.

Our 1936 catalogue describes the methods of egg selection, brooder selection, etc., which MAKE BRAY Chicks "better than we advertise". Get one and study it. We believe it will pay you.

Goodman Pettigrew, member of

Mr. Pettigrew commenting on the matter, said: "The townships of

CHAPTER IV
Grimsby Village — Autumn 1859
Installment 24

"Oh, it's good to go away, but it's better to come back home again," said Mrs. Morton with a sigh, entering the bright farm kitchen and parlor after the camp meeting that Monday afternoon. "Let's get to work, Janet, and shine everything up before they come into supper."

"All right, Mamma, it looks so nice in a house again after that little wooden tent. I love it here." She walked around admiring everything as though she had been away a month.

"Yes, we should be glad for our homes, but we had a wonderful camp meeting."

"I liked living in the woods like that," Janet said, "but why did everybody act so different, Mamma, crying so often and shouting?"

"It would be a little hard for you to understand all the camp meeting, child, but having that big Sunday School down there in the afternoon yesterday was nice for you, wasn't it?" said Mrs. Morton, putting Anna-bed down.

Janet nodded enthusiastically. "I liked the marching with banners."

They got out the brass fenders, the brass wood-box and tongs, the candlesticks with curved handles and the snuffers. Rubbing them with plenty of elbow grease they were soon shining well have some fun."

ing brightly and put back into place. Sand was sprinkled liberally over the board table and all over the kitchen floor.

"You do the table and chairs and I'll get at the floor, then that will do for a few days," said Mrs. Morton. They scrubbed hard to bring out the clean white in the boards.

Out in the barn, cleaning of the stables and barn also took place under Mr. Morton. George was growing to be a very handy right hand man to his father and he was loathe to have him go to college.

"I've been thinking, son, I'll offer your job to Sam Crosby. I'm interested in that man now he's going to make an effort to straighten up."

"I'm glad, Pa. I didn't like to leave you with all this farm to look after, and no help but the two little boys. I'll feel better—and now father since I'm sure the Lord has called me I'm going to work hard."

"I know you will, son. You'll be coming back some day to preach to us. That will be a proud day for your mother and me."

By five o'clock house and barn were again in perfect order as though the Mortons had never been away.

"Sis," said Homer excitedly, bursting in the back door, "the wild duck eggs are gone. I wanted to show John and there's nothing there."

"Oh, I wanted to show them to John," she cried, almost in tears. "They were there Saturday when I looked."

"That's too bad, but it's too late for little ducks anyway, Janet," said her mother. "Nature has a way of always looking after her children. Perhaps if you feed the old ones and keep them around, there may be little ones not far away in the spring. You can all play now till supper is ready for tomorrow you'll have to start to school, then I'll only have my baby to help me."

She only have my baby to help me. She smiled at her little girl who beamed back at her mother. She was very industriously dressing her stocking doll at the moment.

"You get the colt for me again, Janet," coaxed John Topley. "And"

Height, Breadth Of Brow Guide To Hairdressing

Fluffy Curls at Temples Will Help Broaden Forehead
That Is High

A Paris beauty specialist, who says that the style of hairdressing should be decided by the height and breadth of forehead in relation to the cheekbones and length of the face, has mapped a chart to aid women in making the best of their qualities.

For the girl with the average low, broad brow, the hair should be curled softly upward from the cheekbones from a centre part, if the nose is short; or a side part if the nose is prominent. If her forehead is exceptionally broad with wide cheekbones, she will do better to pull her hair back from the face and bring it down sleekly at the sides, as an upward curve of the hair would make her brow too low and would emphasize the broadness of her face. Her eyebrows should be thinned and worn straight to give height to the forehead.

For the receding and slightly balding forehead, the hair should be trained in a wave which juts up from the centre hairline in front and then falls in a long sweep across the upper part of the forehead, thus giving an outward line. In this case the eyebrows might well be patterned after Marlene Dietrich, curving widely up from the bridge of the nose, then sweeping down again slightly before taking a final upward lift at the end.

If the forehead is high and narrow, the hair should be curled or fluffed at the temples to broaden the face; but if the brow is broad, the hair should be softly waved close to the face, with emphasis on "the top of the head."

"Country Doctor" Slam At Canada

When "The Country Doctor" is shown in Canada, critics will have the opportunity of answering the charge that the production makes Canada and Canadians a subject of ridicule. W. L. Clarke, in The Windsor City Star, expresses wonder why the Ontario censors ever put the seal of approval on the picture.

And the opinion finds strong support from a past President of the Ontario Health Association, Dr. James J. McCann, M.D.C.M., M.P. for South Renfrew, who declared that the film will put Canada in a very bad light throughout the rest of the world; the conditions it depicts have not existed in Canada since 1906. A farce is made out of the scenes when the five little girls were brought into the world, that dramatic struggle of Dr. Dufosse to save the lives of mother and the little ones. Dr. McCann protests against the exploitation of one of the wonders of the world for the sake of "American greed."

Possibly in the making of the picture it was inevitable that liberty had to be taken with the actual facts, as the Dionne parents complain, but the film impresses the observer with the semi-civilized condition of the people in the North, queer people, neglected and no consideration given to their health or well-being. It is put down as an hour and a half of rotten advertising for Canada.

It is all very regrettable and so out of line with all the facts that it will do irreparable harm to Canada and particularly to Ontario. It will put a premium on the proverbial ignorance shown by so many United States visitors as they cross the boundary, as regards Canada. It is difficult to credit some of the absurd questions which United States trippers ask, when they first put foot on Canadian soil.

The better class magazines in the United States have told the story of the quintuplets and Dr. Dufosse's work very well. This publicity has given a tremendous impetus to the clinical study of infant welfare all over the continent. Its good effect should not be nullified by a commercial exploitation which belies the truth. — St. Catharines Standard.

It Pays to Advertise

The Goderich Signal published an item about a valuable pigeon which had taken up residence at a farm near Auburn, Ont., and gave the number of its leg-band. The number was recognized in Toronto as being that used by some United States fancier, and the Pigeon Breeders' Association of the United States was advised accordingly. Even pigeons find that it pays to advertise. — Toronto Star.

SYNOPSIS

Joan Dufosse of humble origin, is introduced as a social equal of Miss Georgina La Fontaine, rather than as her secretary. She meets Piers Hannen, millionaire, who forces his attentions on her. Lord Edwards proposes to Joan. Joan leaves Miss La Fontaine to be

Some a wastrel at the Salon Celeste. Piers Hannen takes Joan and her family for a cruise aboard his yacht. Joan is horrified when confronted by Hannen with a blackmail letter from her father. He proposes that she marry him.

As she stepped out of the car the chauffeur handed her a bouquet.

"The flowers, madame," he said.

Vaguely, as she went across the pavement under a cross fire of cameras and curious eyes, Joan looked at the bouquet. Camellias, lilies of the valley. Piers had ordered them.

And then Miss La Fontaine was there at her side with a tender smile, a friendly helping hand under her elbow, escorting her into the church; Miss La Fontaine's cousin, the aged Sir Vincent Morton, whom Joan had known since her childhood, was there to give her away. Piers and Miss La Fontaine between them, presumably, had arranged it.

Though the news that the wedding was to take place had leaked out to the newspapers, very few friends had managed to get hold of the information, and so there were but one or two persons only in the church, friends of Hannen's, whom Joan knew by sight. It was for once a very quiet wedding, as quiet as a secret wedding is supposed to be.

Feeling rather shaky in the knees Joan walked up the aisle on the arm of Sir Vincent Morton. There by the altar stood Hannen, waiting for her with the white-robed Vicar, while at his side was Lord Edward Bligh — Lord Edward, then, was to be Hannen's best man!

But Joan had eyes only for Hannen; what she wanted to relieve her faintness was some reassuring glance from him, some glimpse of kindness, of ruth or mercy.

But though he was pale, though she was sure that his bronzed face had not its usual colour, he looked calm; his blue eyes were cold, unsmiling, pitiless. He spoke with a smile to Lord Edward, but there was no smile for Joan. And though she fancied that perhaps all this hid some inner desperation there was a grim triumph in his bearing as he took his stand beside her before the altar.

Everyone noticed how pale the sweet faced bride was, lovely little figure that she was, standing there beside the tall, powerfully built bridegroom. A ray of sunshine struck through the dim light of the church, lighting up her face and her hands, whose trembling imparted a slight tremor to the flowers she held. At the words: "Wilt thou take this man to be thy wedded husband . . ." she looked up at Piers and said in a clear, firm voice:

"I will!"

But her eyes were so blurred with tears that she could not see him; he was only a tall, implacable figure standing over her.

"I will," she said aloud, but within her heart cried out to him: "Be kind to me! Be kind to me!"

When it was his turn to say "I will," he said it in so implacable a tone that the two words seemed to express his whole indomitable philosophy. There rang through Joan's memory the words he had once said to Lord Edward — poor Lord Edward, who was standing there behind them, who had loved her once and was now compelled to look on at this.

"Edward," Piers Hannen had said, long ago on the day on which Joan first had met him, aboard the yacht Corsair. "I go where I like, I do what I want — and what I want I take!"

She felt him take her hand and slip the ring on her finger. Then his lips touched her brow.

Georgina kissed her; people shook her hand and congratulated her. She heard them congratulating Hannen; she heard his voice talking easily and cheerfully, and everyone laughing at what he said. But when she glanced at him she saw a terrible weariness in his eyes, and though she was near to him he neither looked at nor spoke to her. Well, he had gone so far! And she had had a fancy that at the last moment he might let her off!

They wrote their names in the vestry. And as she signed herself "Denby," Joan realized for the first time that though it was legally hers, she had no right to the name. So strange — so strange! She wondered what Piers would say if he knew of

PROBLEMS OF EVERY DAY LIFE

By Dr. M. M. Lappin

TELL THEM THE TRUTH

"Among the many letters I receive, not a few of them raise a question which I may phrase thus: 'What shall we tell our children?' Here is a typical example:

"Our daughter is almost seventeen. There is a side to life which she has never seen. She will be through with school this year, and some relatives have invited her to stay with them in the city so that she may have better opportunity for advanced education. . . . Our problem is whether we should let her go and run the risk of exposing her to possible dangers which, so far as we know, she does not even know exist."

I have not quoted the letter in full, by any means, but I have quoted enough to indicate what the parents from whom it came believe to be their problem. And, quite frankly, I am surprised that parents in this age should feel this to be a problem. After all, is there any sound reason for trying to veil the true facts of life from our children? If there is, I confess I cannot find it.

There is nothing about life which cannot be made known to our children, and especially when they are approaching that age at which they are forever obliged to go out into the world and face life for themselves. Surely it is far better to warn our children about the traps and pitfalls of life than to have them go out in ignorance and fall into some of those traps and pitfalls. Besides, children will get the facts about life somewhere. If they do not get them in the sacred and wholesome atmosphere of the home, they will get them in the muddy places of life and, if we leave them to "learn things in the dark" we are exposing them to very grave dangers.

It is not knowledge that leads our young people astray. It is ignorance. Indeed, it is something even worse than ignorance, for no youth or maiden goes out into life wholly ignorant, but a great many do go out with only half-knowledge which amounts to distorted truth about the facts of life, and nothing is more conducive to temptation than half-knowledge. I have seen so much distress resulting from this very thing that, when parents ask me: "What shall we tell our children?" I never hesitate in answering: "Tell them the truth."

Contrary to the opinion of a great number of well meaning parents, we do our children a distinct disservice when we try to throw a cloak of mystery around life, and to veil from them the true facts concerning life. "To be forewarned is to be forearmed," and I feel that it is our duty to send out our children both forewarned and forearmed.

I think we should also make it clear to them that there are a great many people in the world who will not be bound by convention and who rebel against the moral sanctions of society.

VICTORIA UNIVERSITY TO CELEBRATE CENTENNIAL

The one hundredth Anniversary of the granting of the Royal Charter by King William IV, in 1828 to Upper Canada Academy, Cobourg, Ontario, as an institution of higher education, will be observed this fall by Victoria University, Toronto. The Upper Canada Academy changed its name to Victoria College in 1841, and this was changed to Victoria University in 1928. Victoria College conferred the first degree in Arts ever conferred in Upper Canada.

In 1925, the original building of Upper Canada Academy, later Victoria College, in Cobourg, was opened in 1828 and still stands. This building is pictured in (1). Emmanuel College, the theological branch of Victoria University, was opened in Toronto in 1921 and is shown in (2) above. Victoria College (2) the Arts Faculty of Victoria University, was opened in 1922 when Victoria College federated with the University of Toronto, and moved to Toronto.

her illegitimacy; the thought struck a pang into her, but perhaps if a man would go to such terrible lengths as he was going in order to get her, he would not trouble much about a thing like that.

She found herself standing with her hand in Miss La Fontaine's; it was very odd too, to know that Georgie was her aunt. This, then, explained all that George had done for her, for she had been very fond of that adventurous brother who had died in the attempt to conquer the Pole.

"Happy, darling?" said Miss La Fontaine, looking at her tenderly. "How pale you are! But you look lovely — Piers, how lovely she looks, doesn't she?"

"Exquisite!" said Piers, sincerely.

"I'm going to take her away now."

"We're never to have her any more?" cried Georgina, playfully. "My dear, you have married a terrible brute — just look at his face! You told me he was a brute, but I never believed you until now." Taking Hannen's hand, she shook it, saying: "My dear boy, how lucky you are! And I would not have given her to anyone but to you!"

Glancing at Joan she added:

"The dear child is getting paler and paler — hurry up and get away, Piers. There are battalions of photographers outside, and quite a crowd has collected. Goodbye, my darling Joan — goodbye!"

Macadamized Roads and Their Invention

"The civilized world has become familiar with 'macadamized' roads, but it is doubtful if many of the millions who use them know the origin of the term," observes the Toronto Mail & Empire. The British Institution of Municipal and County Engineers are taking active steps to commemorate the centenary of the death of that pioneer of roadmaking, John Loudon MacAdam, which occurred at Moffat on November 26, 1836.

MacAdam was born in 1756, his father being a local landowner and banker in Ayr. At the age of fourteen he joined an uncle in business in New York, and did not return to Scotland until 1783. Thereafter for fifteen years he served as Deputy Lieutenant for the County of Ayr, and devoted much attention to the improvement of the local roads. Subsequently he removed to Falmouth, where he was concerned in the vitallizing of the navy, though he also made a hobby of studying road conditions in that part of England. In 1816 he was appointed surveyor of the Bristol Turnpike Trust, and a year later demonstrated his system of road construction in London. This system was based upon the principle that, with proper drainage, broken stone of suitable size can be laid on the natural subsoil, thus eliminating the expensive stone-paved foundation that had previously been considered necessary.

We Should Tour Canada First

A gentleman from Western Canada who has made a specialty of taking pictures of the country to illustrate popular lectures, spoke before the Advertising Club of Montreal recently and voiced a rebuke of the tendencies toward provincialism in Canada, the failure of Canadians to see their own country, to be familiar with its resources and opportunities. For that reason, according to this speaker, man, resources are undeveloped and national progress is retarded.

Perhaps general consideration of this scheme might stimulate domestic travel, which would be advantageous in many ways. There can be little doubt about the assertion that Canadians are surprisingly ignorant concerning their own territory. There is in Northern Ontario and Quebec a tremendous mineral area, with prosperous operating mines all over the landscape, yet it is safe to say that not five per cent. of the population knows what or where they are or has ever visited that part of the country to acquire intimate knowledge of its progress and prospects.

In Western Canada we possess the world's greatest wheat-producing empire but comparatively few people have visited it to gain first-hand knowledge about agriculture.

Beyond the Rockies is another type of country that is largely unknown to the eastern resident and few westerners are familiar with the ports of Montreal, Quebec and Halifax.

When a Canadian reaches the stage of opulence and unrest that animates him to see the world he packs off on a journey to California, Florida or Europe. He is fairly indifferent to the gigantic scenic and commercial appeal of his own vast country. He may never have seen Niagara Falls, but becomes impatient to check over Paris or Budapest. The slogan "See Canada First" should be preached more vigorously. — Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

Future Veterans Banding Together

Toronto Students Plan to Profit by Experiences of Past Wars

Undergraduates of the University of Toronto, proceeding on the premise that they are destined to be put into uniform when the next war breaks out, have organized a Canadian branch of "The Veterans of Future Wars," in order to prepare in advance for the problems they expect both during and after the actual conflict.

The officers of this new "legion of tomorrow" are as follows: Honorary president, Olivia Dionne; president, R. G. Anglin, Victoria College; vice-president, Clarke Hood, University College; treasurer, James Kemp, Trinity College.

Similar organizations have been formed at several United States universities. The Toronto group has decided to ask the alumni association of the university to erect a cenotaph on the front campus in honor of the veterans of the next war.

"We do not demand an expensive monument," says President Anglin. "One of our members, James Kemp, has designed just the type of cenotaph that will suit our purpose, featuring the simple, homely lines of a park bench. This it will not only be a thing of beauty, but will be practical as well, since it will provide a place for the unemployed veterans of tomorrow to sit down."

Gerald Anglin, organizer of the "future veterans," stated that plans were under way for a gala pre-union in Toronto next June, of all Canadian men young enough to be conscripted in the next war.

Asked if his duties as chief organizer did not interfere with his preparations for the coming examinations, Mr. Anglin replied:

"We feel we shouldn't be required to study for exams. Even the Board of Examiners could not be so cold-blooded as to pluck students who are going to die for their country in the near future. But just to make doubly sure," he continued, "we will petition President Cuddy to grant us our degrees at once, without writing any exams, so that we will be ready to enlist as soon as the call comes."

Charles Joffe, an active member, has been appointed chairman of the committee in charge of Being Sorry That We Have Only One Life to Give to Our Country.

The "veterans of future wars" also want the Government to pay them each $1,000 bonus immediately. They argue that as "future" victims of war, they ought to get whatever benefits there are.

"If we must die," said one "future war" veteran, "we choose to be paid first."

Saskatchewan Demands Test

Prospective Groom Must Have Certificate

SAKATON, Sask.—While Connecticut boasts of being the first state of the union to demand physical tests before marriage, and these the most stringent anywhere, Saskatchewan preceded the American state by five years in this type of legislation. Amendments to the Saskatchewan Marriage Act, which simplify those of 1931 in the course of the next few weeks.

Compulsory medical examination before marriage was made law in Saskatchewan in 1931, but the legislation thus far applies only to men.

For undivided reasons two governments have hesitated to extend the ruling to the other sex, although women have been most insistent in a demand for this further step.

Under the present regulations, the aspiring bridegroom, applying at the jewelry store for a marriage license, must present a doctor's certificate of health. The examination through which the groom must pass to get a clean bill of health includes a careful check for social disease, mental stability and general health. This includes the laboratory blood test of which Connecticut boasts.

When the proposed changes in the Marriage Act become law, the bridegroom will present his health certificate to the officiating clergyman or marriage commissioner instead of the issuer of the marriage license. The license may be obtained any time up to three months before the ceremony. The health certificate may not be more than 10 days old.

Saskatchewan's civil marriage provisions, also contained in 1931 amendments to the Marriage Act, have not been implemented, partly due to opposition from Roman Catholics in the Province. The minister under whose department the Marriage Regulations are enforced, the Hon. J. M. Ulrich, is himself a Roman Catholic, and declared recently there was no need for civil marriage in Saskatchewan. Since then, however, a civil marriage commissioner has been appointed at Goldfields, the new mining town on Lake Athabasca in the far north of the Prairie Province.

In Norway the farms have separate buildings for various purposes. A building called the Stabbur holds the yearly harvest of cereals, cheeses, bread, cakes and dried meats, etc. When a member of the family wishes to dress for a social affair she must go out and cross the yard to a building where her chests of linens and best clothes are stored.

Million Dollar Wrigley Sign Starts Operation

The new Wrigley Spearmint Gum Sign on Times Square, New York City, a million dollar project, largest of its kind in the world, was formally dedicated and put into operation on Saturday evening, March 28th.

The sign occupies the entire block on Broadway from 44th to 45th Street on the east side of Times Square. The new sign is a super-structure on the top of a two-story steel and concrete building built especially to bear the tremendous weight of the display. This world's largest spectacular towers ten stories high; the spearmint on the sign has a grin a yard wide. The package of Wrigley's Spearmint is larger than a boxcar.

The sign shows gigantic, multi-colored, tropical fish swimming about the sky; the largest fish measures 42 feet from tip to tail. The flashing mechanism consists of twenty-one pieces of apparatus, all operating in unison, but no one piece is synchronized with another. The electrical current required for this huge display would serve a city of ten thousand. There are 1,084 feet of neon tubing and almost seventy miles of wire used. The investment on the entire project is a cool million dollars.

Hundreds of thousands of people will pass the sign each day; the number who pass daily through the subway at Times Square is estimated to be almost equal to the population of Toronto.

Broadway blinks in the splendour of the world's largest tapestry in electric, as the new "spectacular" on the Great White Way, Times Square, New York City, was put into operation recently with ceremony. The huge tropical fish in the scene swim slowly, in startling contrast to the usual eye jerking signs of this type. A full block long and stretching ten stories high, the new display represents a million-dollar investment.

Farm Problems

with the co-operation of the various departments of Ontario Agricultural College.

The business of farming is yearly becoming more and more dependent upon facts that have been gathered regarding livestock and livestock management, crop production, soil management, disease and insect control and business organization of the farming industry. Individual problems involving one or more of these, and many other phases of agriculture, engage the attention of Ontario farmers from day to day. During the winter months there is a little more time for study of the most acute problems.

Through this column farmers may secure the latest information pertaining to their difficulties. To introduce this service Professor Bell has prepared the following typical problems to indicate the information which should be given in order that a satisfactory answer can be made.

If answer is desired by letter enclose stamped and addressed envelope for reply. Address all inquiries to Professor Henry G. Bell, Room 421, 73 Adelaide St. W., Toronto, Ontario.

Question 1 (a). R. W., Oxford County: "What analysis of fertilizer should I use on strawberries on clay loam soil, heavily manured before planting. Plants have set fairly good and have good top?"

Answer: We assume that the strawberry patch is now standing, having been successfully planted last summer. In regard to the matter of applying fertilizer, it would have been better if you had applied fertilizer to the ground when preparing it for planting. Many successful strawberry growers get good results by supplementing their heavy manure with two or three bags per acre of such a fertilizer as 4-8-10, working this into the soil along the rows where the strawberries are to be planted. Since this was not done in your case, there is good reason to believe that your patch would benefit from scattering this fertilizer on the row where strawberries are planted as soon as the strawberries are worked, early in the spring, working this into the ground. Fertilizing, the application of nitrogen carriers such as nitrate of soda or sulphate of ammonia, at the rate of 100-150 lbs. per acre, in the same way, should give good results. In applying these carriers of nitrogen, be especially careful not to scatter it on the crop while there is dew on the plants or immediately after rain. There is a tendency for it to stick to the leaves and burn them. If applied to the crop when it is dry, this is prevented.

Question 1 (b). "Fertilizer companies guarantee a certain brand of fertilizer as 1 per cent. water soluble nitrogen, 2 per cent. total nitrogen. Is there any available nitrogen in the 1 per cent. not water soluble? If so, when will it be available for the plants to use?"

Answer: Water soluble nitrogen is certainly available nitrogen in plant growth. If the fertilizer contains 2 per cent. total nitrogen and 1 per cent. water soluble nitrogen, the remaining 1 per cent. of nitrogen is probably of organic source that must await bacterial action in order that it be readily available or it may be nitrogen in the form not taken up in large quantities by the growing crop, which must be also await bacterial action to change it to nitrate form in which the nitrogen is taken up. One cannot answer definitely as to when this latter form of nitrogen will be available for plant use, but under normal conditions, of warm spring weather and with the soil in good condition, it certainly should be available during early life of the plant.

Here Is Heresy!

LONDON, Ont.—Both Santa Claus and the old-fashioned bogey man have in for some harsh criticism when Rev. W. G. Colgrove of London, addressed the delegates to the 14th annual meeting of the Middlesex school trustees and ratepayers' association.

He said many school teachers have used the bogey man to frighten their young charges. Characterizing it as a relic of the dark ages, Mr. Colgrove said it was time to banish it from modern education.

On the other hand, Santa Claus is just the subject of much youthful humor about Christmas time, which staid parents, renewing the ancient myth, never suspect.

"Children accept our gifts at Christmas time, meanwhile snickering under their sleeves at our story of Santa Claus," Mr. Colgrove declared. It was time, he said, to get rid of Santa Claus as a benevolent person.

Device Punctures Tires if Autos Fail To Stop

EDMONTON—H. A. Parsons explained to the Board of Railway Commissioners here a device he invented which he claims will prevent railway crossing accidents by puncturing tires when motorists ignore danger signals.

Called a "puncture barrier," the inventor said it was designed to be installed at crossings and operated by approaching trains. When a train approached within 200 yards of the crossing a red beacon would flare from the box-like contrivance. Should this warning fail to halt the motorist, a row of nails would automatically rise near the rails and puncture the tires.

Board members displayed an interest in the invention.

A thrilling March meeting for the small boys of the 30th Ottawa Cub Pack was a "pirate's night." Uniforms were dispensed with in favour of "pirate clothes," there were "Pieces of Eight" and other pirate games, and a big pirate's treasure hunt. The "chest of gold," when finally discovered, proved to contain a bushel of juicy red apples.

A Wolf Cub totem pole, the gift of Rev. W. H. Townley-Tilson, of Gray Abbey, Ireland, was a recent and greatly appreciated gift to the 118th Toronto "B" Cub Pack.

Inter-city Scout visiting is again in full swing. Some 40 Scouts, leaders and committeemen of the 18th and 20th London Scout Troops paid a visit to the 5th St. Thomas (Trinity) Group, for an evening of games, entertainment, and refreshments. The Scouts of the St. Luke's and Central United Groups joined the Trinity boys in the entertainment of the Londoners.

A novel service came the way of Lethbridge Scouts in connection with the annual spring auction of horses by the Lethbridge Exhibition Board. The Scouts were invited to provide and sell light lunches on the Exhibition Grounds, in order that the sale of horses might continue without interruption.

London, England, has 57,668 Boy Scouts and leaders of all ranks, according to the last Scout census. These are grouped in 1,084 Wolf Cub Packs, 1,164 Scout troops and 659 Rover crews.

Last year 566 Ontario Boy Scouts demonstrated their ability to wash clothes, and so qualified for the Scout Laundryman's Proficiency badge.

"They said we were under water about two minutes," said Vernon Clarke, of Ridgeway, discussing the rescue from drowning of Mrs. Earl Wilson, for which he was recently awarded a Royal Humane Society merchment. "Well, it seemed a lot longer than that. But if it hadn't been for the things I learned in the Scouts about life saving from my old Scoutmaster Leslie Wheeler, I would have been listed among the drowning victims."

The new reservoir created by Boulder Dam will hold 1,453,915,000,000 gallons of water, according to the commissioner of reclamation.

NEWS OF

BEAMSVILLE

Harold Clarke, a pupil of the high school, has recently completed a clever scroll from The King's Code of Living. The masterpiece has been framed and will be presented to the board of education by the Lena Davis chapter, I.O.D.E., at a special school assembly on Thursday afternoon.

The post office department is asking for tenders for the conveyance of mail on route No. 3 out of Beamsville. Returning Officer S. J. Wilson and Secretary A. N. Payne have just received their cheques for acting in those official capacities in Lincoln county in the Dominion elections of last October.

During the severe windstorm recently, a pupil of the high school while going to school was lifted off her feet, and carried about six feet, dropping her in a very muddy puddle, full length. A trip home again was necessary before the afternoon's lessons began.

Word has been received by Mrs. Roy Waterworth of the death of her brother-in-law, Roland Ranciar, in Seattle, Wash.

Mrs. Jack Morley, of Ottawa, is visiting with her parents here.

Miss Dorothy Elmer has entered as nurse in training in the Salvation Army Hospital, Toronto.

Inspector G. A. Carefoot has advised the board of education that it is contrary to the act to interrupt the school courses with beginners after the Easter holidays. At the regular meeting of the board Friday night it was decided to advise parents to heed the inspector's notice and not start young children until September.

Caretaker Norman Wilson, of the high school, was allowed holidays as from July 15 to take in the Vimy trip. He will pay for a substitute.

The high and vocational school was crowded with parents and visitors Friday night to see the various displays of the vocational school. The exhibit of activities was a most comprehensive and pleasing one. The moving picture display was one of the features of the evening.

FRUITLAND

The choir of Fruitland United church held a very successful crokinole party Wednesday evening, the proceeds of which is to be used for the purchase of music. Mrs. H. Callick won the ladies' prize and Charles Rolfe the gentleman's prize. Mrs. Parker and J. B. Pettit received consolation prizes.

The Women's Missionary society of Winona and Fruitland held their Easter thanksgiving meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. J. B. Pettit. Mrs. S. Henderson had charge of the study book and introduced Miss C. Briggeman, Mrs. H. Barnard and Mrs. Woodley, who read papers on the education of the African woman. Mrs. R. Ainslie gave a fine description of the medical work carried on throughout the Dominion. Mrs. M. Karr and Mrs. W. Welsh reported on the branch conference recently held in Galt.

Rev. I. M. Meyer is conducting special services in Fruitland United church during Passion week, commencing Monday evening at 8 o'clock, and each night thereafter.

WINONA

There was a good attendance at the community fellowship hour at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Branton, when William Carson, of Beamsville, brought an inspiring message, The Christian Soldier.

94 YEAR OLD MAN
EXPERT WITH RIFLE

The Stoney Creek Rifle club, the members of which hold target practice every week, had a notable visitor recently in the person of Henry Hammond, of Hagersville, who is 94 years of age. He fired several shots every one of which was on the target, making a remarkable score for a man of his years.

The late Major F. M. Carpenter, then Captain Carpenter, and afterward member of parliament for Wentworth county, was the first officer in charge of the Fifth company when it was organized. The rifle ranges are on the farm of W. E. Corman and were established 50 years ago, in 1886. Several of the original members still participate in the shooting matches.

and had taken a train. There I lost him. I returned to Beamsville and learned that Mr. Matthews had a natchel with him marked 'H.W.M., Balto.' I prepared extradition papers and went to Baltimore and found that Hugh W. Matthews, a rich manufacturer lived in a fine mansion at No. 263 West Lanvale street, and was a prominent business man of high standing, in that city. On inquiry I ascertained that he was a brother-in-law of John Stone. It was March 5th when I arrived in Baltimore and I called on Chief Jacob Frey, an old friend. He detailed Detective Albert Galt and I went to the Matthews house and walked in and found John Stone lying on a lounge in the library gazing idly at the ceiling. I had laid an information before United States Commissioner Rogers and Galt arrested Stone.

"In a twinkling the whole household, servants and all, were around us saying John Stone was ill and we could not take him. Dr. Beaton and Dr. Harvey hurried in, summoned by a member of the household, and told us we must not lay a hand on John Stone, as it would endanger his life. Discretion was the better part of valor. Stone had seemed quite comfortable when we entered, but he seemed to sink rapidly in five minutes. It may have been due to his earlier love for the stage and acting. I was satisfied he was shamming and I left Galt with him in case he tried to escape again. I went back to Police Headquarters and saw Chief Frey and told him what had happened.

"All right," said Frey. "If there he's ill, there he stays."

"Frey detailed two more detectives, Tom Baringer and Mark Hagen, to join Galt. The three detectives arranged their tours of duty in shifts of eight hours, and they watched John Stone, keeping him in actual sight day and night.

"I called on Commissioner Rogers and on United States Marshall John McClintock. They said they could do nothing. I went to Washington and called on Sir Sackville West, then British Ambassador, and stated my case. Sir Sackville West called a carriage and drove to the State Department. Thomas F. Bayard was Secretary of State. He was deaf as a post. We shouted the case to Mr. Bayard. He said he did not know what he could do until the case came into court. I returned to the British Legation with Sir Sackville, who was a very nice little gentleman. He advised me to get an American lawyer. He also gave me a letter to Dennis O'Donoghue, at Baltimore, one of the oldest British consuls on the continent.

After leaving Sir Sackville I went to call on my old friend Senator Daniel W. Voorhees, of Indiana, who had been my counsel before in various extradition cases including the Meagher case in Indianapolis. He was living at The Portland and was indisposed, but he sent word for me to come right up.

Three justices of the United States Supreme Court were calling on Senator Voorhees at the time. They were Justice Gray, Justice Field and another. It was March 22nd. Voorhees made me hush telling the judges of old cases and heaping flattery on me. "What is it this time, Murray?" he asked. "Out with it. These gentlemen have heard cases stated before now—desperate cases, too, and desperately stated."

"I told the case right then and there, the whole story, while the four men, three judges of the United States Supreme Court and Senator Voorhees listened.

"Is he dying?" they asked.
"I think he is feigning," said I.
"Suppose he pleads insanity?" said one of the justices.

"It would not be upshot" said I.
"But if the Commissioner decided against you?" he asked.

"Murray would appeal, so beware, gentlemen, beware," said Senator Voorhees.

"Besides that he carried a pocketful of Canada money," said Voorhees to Gray jokingly. "What shall we do; take it away from him?"

"Oh, no," said Attorney-General Gariand. "In respect to our friend, we'll bear the burden of these expenses, and his government of course will appreciate the splendid work he has done."

"Attorney-General Gariand directed that all expenses, the Commissioner, Marshal, witnesses, doctors, and detectives, amounting to several thousand dollars be paid by the United States. The three detectives were on duty watching Stone one hundred and thirty days. They received $5 each a day, or a total of $1,950. Chief Frey and his staff gave a banquet for me before I left. He and his men stood true through the entire case, and could not be swayed. They are of God's own people in the police business.

"John Stone was discharged in Baltimore. He went to Texas as well as ever. Two years later ex-cema broke out, and shortly thereafter he died. The bullet was found embedded in his brain. After hearing this, I investigated the matter of foreign substance in the brain. I found a case reported in New Hampshire where a man was blasting, the charge hung fire, he tampered with it, and the crowbar was blown up to the top of his head, so that two men had to pull it out and yet he lived. A German case was reported where a man, desiring to commit suicide, drove two chisels into his head with a mallet. They caused him such pain that he yelled, and help came, and pulled them out, and he lived. Marvellous things happen to the brain, and the person still lives.

"The case of John Stone was remarkable, not alone for the bullet in the brain. John Stone was a remarkable man, with a brain full of stranger things than bullets, but we were entitled to a jury trial of his case, and in this I feel that my opinion would have been upheld by the Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States. I do not of course mean to say that I know whereof I speak. I heard Stone died in the midst of vain imaginings."

he said in answer to rumors which have circulated in Queen's Park lately that the Government planned an early election.

"I have nothing to say about 1937, or any other year, for that matter. We certainly will put through a redistribution before any vote, however. You can bank on that," the Premier said when the press questioned him.

"Will there be any Cabinet changes?" a reporter asked.

"Certainly none now," he replied.

"I don't know what made me do it," the Premier told the press. "As far as my own personal well-being is concerned, I should step out of office. My doctors insist I should. But I can't let my colleagues and my supporters down, especially at a time like this. There is such a thing as loyalty to one's friends you know. So I intend going through with this job until after the next election if it kills me."

To Consider Statement Later
Consideration of the town financial statement and auditor's report was laid over until a further meeting which is likely to be held next week. A detailed statement for the year 1935 appears on pages two and three of this week's issue of The Independent.

We would ask that they as far as possible employ local labor this year and in doing so help out the relief problems as well as others."

Philharmonic Choir
And Orchestra Heard
In High Class Program

The Philharmonic Choir of Beamsville assisted by the Community Concert Orchestra, with F. W. Timms conducting, on Thursday evening last presented a most appealing and meritorious program in Community Hall, Beamsville. These two organizations acquitted themselves most creditably in the fifth annual concert which was listened to by a large and appreciative audience.

The program comprised selections by both choir and orchestra, the organizations giving a delightfully varied group of selections which reflected their musicianship and artistry. They were accorded a most appreciative hearing and were generously applauded following the rendition of the various numbers. The unaccompanied numbers were especially appealing while the soloists sang with much effectiveness.

Prior to the giving of the concert Mr. W. A. Ross, the president, spoke briefly with reference to the activities of the choir and orchestra whose wholehearted co-operation with the support of the public made possible the giving of these concerts from year to year.

DEATH OF MRS.

RICHARD E. EDWARDS

Word was received this Wednesday morning of the death in Modesto, California of Mrs. Richard E. Edwards, known to many Grimsby friends as Lucy B. Clarke, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George A. Clarke and niece of the late William F. Clarke. The deceased lady was born in Grimsby and was a brilliant graduate of Grimsby High School. At one time she taught school at Moulton, in Welland county. Later she resided in Niagara Falls, N.Y., Winnipeg, Nanaimo, B.C. and at her last address in California where she taught school for many years. Her first husband John M. Harlow predeceased her five years ago. She remarried three years later. She is survived by one sister, Mrs. W. F. Randall, Fruitland, a brother, Andrew B. Clarke, recently news editor of the Toronto Globe and now secretary of the Development and Recovery Committee with offices in the King Edward Hotel, Toronto.

THE ORIENTAL

livorus by name, was introduced from New Jersey by the Entomological Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, and in an astonishingly short period became well established, and proved to be by far the most valuable of all fruit moth parasites. In this connection it is worth while mentioning that from 1932 to 1935 parasitism by Macrocentrus increased almost 500 per cent. throughout the whole peninsula. It is also of interest to note that an analysis of records taken in four observation orchards in different parts of the peninsula shows that the increase of the introduced parasite more or less parallels the decrease of the moth, and also that the parasite was most probably the greatest single factor in causing the decrease.

It is now reasonably certain that the oriental fruit moth has done its worst and that, from now on in the average season, moth injury will be approximately what it was during the past two years. It will be an agreeable surprise, however, if the insect does not appear every now and again in commercially injurious numbers in at least some orchards.
